Exodus Multimedia

A new, local Amiga dealer/developer

Exodus Multimedia, a Dallas based video developer, was at the May meeting of the Amiga North Dallas chapter. They are the producers of the Maverick Digital Video Workstation which is a PC based machine. They have a strong interest in the Amiga computer and were at the Gateway show where they had some one-on-one conversations with Amiga Inc. They have a developer status and plan to move their product to the new Amiga operating environment as soon as it is released. They gave us a number of insights into what is going on at Amiga; at least as much as they were able to without violating their non-disclosure agreements.

They were also kind enough to provide a door prize, Fire CD, which is a pyrotechnics display on CD-ROM. Ken Doll was the lucky winner.

Exodus is an Amiga dealer and they promised to keep us up to date as much as possible with late-breaking news about our favorite computer.

Important!

News about Amiga-By-The-Loop

The Amiga-By-The-Loop chapter is about to loose its home. June will be the last meeting at the Bell Helicopter Training Facility. They are turning classrooms into offices. Obviously, that means we'll be meeting at a new location in July. Problem is... we don't know where that will be yet.

Be sure to read the July AGM Connection for information on when and where our chapter will be meeting. The information will also be available on our trusty AGM web site: <http://www.startext.com/np/agm/>. Just don't forget to check! In the meantime, we'll be looking for you in June at the same time, same place.
